

Miranda Compton

Miranda has been working within the public health and community service sectors for over 20 years, and has a Masters of Social Work from the University of British Columbia. As a leader of people, programs and change process, she has a passion for addressing health inequities across the system of care. She is currently the Regional Director for Prevention within the Office of the Chief Medical Health Officer at Vancouver Coastal Health. Within this role, Miranda is the operations lead for the region's opioid overdose emergency response strategies. Prior to her current role, Miranda led Vancouver Coastal Health's HIV Program and the implementation of a Seek and Treat for Optimal Prevention of HIV/AIDS (STOP HIV) initiative that included the development of a clinical outreach program, and a comprehensive re-design of community-based HIV services within the Vancouver region. Miranda has also held clinical and leadership roles at AIDS Vancouver and BC Women's Hospital & Health Centre.
